Local Market Overview

BIST - As 'Trump 2.0' begins, data flow will be busy on the local agenda. Since the US Presidential election in November, the MSCI World index has outperformed the MSCI Emerging Markets index by 8%. MSCI Türkiye index had a 17% stronger performance than MSCI EM index. In the same period, US 10-year bond yield was priced at 4.19%->4.60%, Dollar index 103.8->109.7, Gold (ounce) 2737->2700, Brent oil $75->$80. As the period considered as 'Trump 2.0' begins, investors will focus on the first actions of the new US administration and its possible effects on the markets, while US bond yields remain high. On the local side, the week's agenda includes the trend in global risk appetite, MPC meeting, Moody's review and IPOs. The total size of the two IPOs to be realised this week is ~$141 million. The major local agenda items of the week are the MPC meeting on 23 January and Moody's credit rating review on 24 January. The consensus expectation in the market for the MPC is for an interest rate cut. In 2024, BIST100 index gained 0.4% on average in the 3-day period before the MPC meetings. In the said period, Banking, Telecom, Retail, REIT, IT were the sectors that positively decoupled in average value increase. Let us remind you that if a rating increase comes after Moody's credit rating review, which is another agenda item, Moody's credit rating for Turkey will be at the same level with S&P and Fitch. Last week, before the MPC meeting and Moody's credit rating review, we shared that we considered the retreat to the $ 275-270 range in the BIST100 index as a buying opportunity. The short-term resistances we foresee above this region are $ 285-287 (~TL10,150-10,250) and $ 300-310 (~TL10,700-11,000). $273 (~TL9,690) can be monitored as a near-term support level.

BİST-100 (Day, ABD$)

VIOP Index30 – The busy agenda throughout the week may increase volatility in the 11,400-11,800 range... In the February futures Index30, the intra-day close for the week was 11,470, while it was 11,478 in the evening session. While the US started the week closed due to a public holiday, President Trump will be inaugurated at an official ceremony at 8:00 pm PT. As the end of January approaches, it will be the week with the most intense data agenda. On Thursday, the Central Bank of Turkey will announce the first interest rate decision of 2025 at 14:00. The median expectation of economists in the Bloomberg survey is that the one-week repo rate will fall from 47.50% to 45%. Immediately afterwards, on Friday, credit rating company Moody's may update its assessment of Turkey (Turkey's rating is B1 with a positive outlook). BIST30 February futures continue to rise after stabilizing around the 11,167 level. It may target the 100g. moving average at 11,730 in the new week. Expected developments during the week may increase volatility. However, short-term profit sales can also be observed beforehand. The first trading day of the week may start with a positive opening around 11,500 with continued buying. Let us remind you that 11.400-11.350 levels are support and 11.510-11.600 levels are resistance zones to be used during the day.

Spot USDTRY.. According to market surveys, CBRT is expected to cut the policy rate by 250 bps to 45% at the MPC meeting on Thursday this week. CBRT had started to cut interest rates in December. According to the market participants survey released on Friday, 12-month ahead inflation expectations fell to 25.4%. The current policy rate provides a real return relative to both realized and expected inflation. The disinflation process has been progressing more effectively with the contribution of the real appreciation in TRY since last year. Therefore, the CBRT's rate cuts will be in a way to preserve the real return in TRY. While the depreciation of the TL in the last month is around 1.1%, the monthly interest yield on TL is over 3%. Therefore, when calculated according to the exchange rate, TL interest yields have a reasonable rate of return in dollar terms. Under these conditions, holding TL will still remain an attractive option.

Macroeconomic and Political News

Inflation expectations improve according to market participants survey

Survey of Market Participants: According to the Survey of Market Participants the GDP growth expectation for 2025 remained at 3.1% and announced at 3.9% for 2026. The inflation expectation has declined to 25.4% from 27.1% for 12 months and from 18.5% to 17.7% for 24 months ahead. The 2025 year-end inflation forecast is 27.1%. The CBRT's 1-week repo rate expectation for January is 45.0%, prompting a 250 bps cut expectation for the January 24 MPC meeting. The policy rate expectation is 40.9% for 3 months ahead, and 29.1% for 12 months ahead.
